“The following is a direct script of a teaching that is intended to be presented via video, incorporating relevant text, slides, media, and graphics to assist in illustration, thus facilitating the presentation of the material. In some places, this may cause the written material to not flow or sound rather awkward in some places. In addition, there may be grammatical errors that are often not acceptable in literary work. We encourage the viewing of the video teachings to complement the written teaching you see below.”

Have you misunderstood what the New Testament teaches about God’s Law?

Can you improve what is already perfect?

Psalm 19:7 says that God’s law is perfect. Yet, some claim this perfect law has been “improved” or even set aside. Can something already perfect be improved? Does it make sense for God to abolish something that he calls flawless? Is it possible that many misunderstand what the New Testament teaches about the law of God?

Does one need to be freed from what is already liberty?

Psalm 119:44-45 says that God’s law gives freedom. However, some teach that believers were “freed” from God’s law. Why would God liberate us from something that gives us liberty? Is it possible that many misunderstand what the New Testament teaches about the law of God? If the law is freedom, should we want to be “freed” from freedom?

Is all Scripture truly intended for training in righteousness?

In 2 Timothy 3:16, Paul affirms that “all Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness.” Yet, some argue that certain parts of Scripture—specifically, God’s laws—have been set aside and no longer apply to believers today. If that were true, then at least some Scripture would not be profitable for training in righteousness. But does that align with what Paul is actually saying?

When Paul says “all Scripture,” does he mean every word, or only select portions? Could it be that many today have misunderstood what the New Testament actually teaches about God’s law?

God’s law is perfect, freedom, and training for righteousness; why wouldn’t we seek to understand how ALL of it shapes our walk with him?

If you want to explore how the entire Word of God is meant to be part of our faith and understand how the New Testament does not teach that the law of God was abolished or changed, we invite you to visit the 119 Ministries YouTube channel or our website at TestEverything.net.

Come see how we can apply the whole word of God to our lives.

Shalom, and may Yahweh bless you in walking in the whole Word of God.
